Sawyer County Land, Water & Forest Resources Committee Meeting

DNR Forestry Report for October 2022

Wildlife (Josh Spiegel, Sawyer County DNR Wildlife Biologist):

Follow-up from previous meeting: The following paragraphs address a question related to EHD (Epizootic Hemorrhagic Disease), aka Blue Tongue, which is a viral disease.

The virus that causes EHD can be carried by midges, which are small flies also known as biting gnats or no-see-ums. The EHD virus does not infect humans. People are not at risk of developing disease from this virus even if they handle infected deer, eat venison from infected deer or are bitten by infected midges. Epizootic hemorrhagic disease is common across the southern and western United States, occasionally showing up in the Midwest. It can be fatal to deer, especially in populations that have limited previous exposure to the virus, such as in Wisconsin. The disease is typically short-lived, as the flies that transmit the disease die with the first hard frost. When deer die of EHD, they typically expire within seven days of infection. Clinical signs of EHD in deer include excessive salivation or foaming around the nose and mouth; appearing weak and approachable by humans; and carcasses found in or near water sources, as infected deer will often lay in water to cool down or drink.

The disease was diagnosed for the first time in Wisconsin deer in the fall of 2002 when approximately 14 deer were found suddenly dead in Iowa County. Between 2002 and 2011, blood samples from deer were collected and tested. The results did not find antibodies to the viruses that cause HD, which suggests that deer in Wisconsin are not routinely exposed to these viruses. Sporadic outbreaks of epizootic hemorrhagic disease occur in Wisconsin. In the fall of 2012, deer found dead in eight southern Wisconsin counties tested positive for epizootic hemorrhagic disease virus (EHDV). In the fall of 2019, EHDV was detected in deer found dead in southwestern Wisconsin. In the fall of 2020, there were small outbreaks of less than 50 deer each in Oconto and Buffalo counties. In the fall of 2021, epizootic hemorrhagic disease virus (EHDV) was confirmed in deer in La Crosse and Juneau counties. Reports of deer suspected to have died from EHD were less than 20 for each county.

For more information, please visit the WDNR website at the attached link. This link provides a full list of diseases and health concerns that can be found in WI wildlife, including EHD. In the EHD section, there is a bunch of information including more signs, public health, transmission, and links/maps

Recreation (Kyle Marinoff, DNR Parks and Recreation Supervisor):

Connors Creek ATV Bridge on the Flambeau River State Forest: The Connors Creek ATV bridge is done. The trail has been re-opened for use and has been signed accordingly. This also means the trail will be open for snowmobile use this winter.

Docks at State Boat Landings: Docks at DNR boat landings have been removed for the season.
